July 4th profit breaks record with $2700

N. M. Lattof, chairman of Arlington Heights OCD, reported to the Civilian Defense Council Tuesday night that the net profit from the 1943 July 4th event is approximately $2723. A payment to the park board of probably $100 is all that remains unpaid.

The increase in the net returns can be attributed to the more generous response of the business firms who underwrote the event to the extent of $963 compared to $618 in 1942 and to the patronage which made possible a 100 per cent increase in the profit at the various concessions and stands. The bingo game profit was triple that of last year.

None of the net proceeds is earmarked for any purpose, except the payment of rent for the ration board. Expenditure of any of the money awaits action of the council, on the membership of which every civic organization of the community has representation. Use of July 4 funds for civic purposes, in place of awarding it to any particular organization, seems to be the popular thought. The erection of a permanent memorial at the end of the war is one suggestion that has been made.

Sailors seek a washing machine

Has anyone in Arlington Hts, or surrounding towns a washing machine he or she would like to give to the navy men stationed at Glenview auxiliary naval air field at Arlington Heights? It can be old, outmoded, or most anything, just so it washes. The sailors are required to wash their white summer uniforms daily, and it is really almost too great a task to do by hand. Anyone willing to give away, or sell at a nominal price such a machine is asked to call Mrs. M. J. Hannigan at Arlington Heights 1528.

Also, the sailors would appreciate any recent editions of magazines. At present there are only thirteen men stationed at the auxiliary field and most of these are required to remain at the post; thus, any reading matter is very welcome to help pass away their free time. Those who have magazines may also call Mrs. Hannigan.

Taxes due in August

The second installment of the 1942 real estate taxes will be due in August.

Penalty date on the second installment will be September 1.

The country town collection offices will be open some time in August for the collection of these taxes. Definite dates will be announced later.

Anyone wanting to pay their second installment at once may do so by contacting his local collector.

Collectors will also take any first installment payments and turn them over to the county collectors.

The town collectors appreciate the fine cooperation of their tax payers and urge them to make payment of the second installments to the home collector.

Palatine Fireman's festival a huge success

The Palatine Firemen's festival closed Sunday night after four evenings of fun on the part of a happy hungry crowd which gave all the stands a big play and consumed untold quantities of hot dogs, ham, coffee, eggs and everything that the eat stand had to offer.

On Saturday night the largest crowd in the history of the event came early and stayed late. Sunday's crowd was equally large but went home earlier to get ready for work the next day.

The firemen wish to thank all who helped in any way to make the annual event the outstanding success that it was, despite the curtailment of some features, due to war conditions.

Arlington Seating Co. raises 'Minute Man' flag

A joint "Minute Man" flag raising ceremony and memorial service for John Nickol were held last Saturday at the Arlington Seating Co. The "Minute Man" flag is awarded to companies which have ninety per cent or more of their employees buying War Bonds. John Nickol was the first employee of the company to be killed in this war.

At 11 o'clock Saturday the plant shut down for an hour so that all employees could attend the ceremonies, and a crowd of more than 100 persons gathered at the southeast corner of the factory building where the flag was to be raised. Mr. N. M. Lattof, local co-ordinator of Civilian Defense, spoke on the plan and system of buying War Bonds and the meaning of the flag. The American Legion brought their colors and provided a bugler for the occasion. Miss Barbara McWharter sang the National Anthem, after which Richard H. Jahn, factory superintendent, read the honor roll, consisting of 21 men of Arlington Seating Co. who are now in service.

The third name on this honor roll was that of John Nickol, who left for the army in June, 1941, and was killed in action this past May. When he left he hung his hat in the factory and said he'd be back for it when the war was over. Now none of his fellow workers will touch it. Rev. George Stier, pastor of St. James Catholic Church, of which John was a member, gave a very fine talk in which he referred to John and the example he set.

Following his talk the group present stood in silence for one minute as a memorial. Finally the "Minute Man" flag was raised by Mr. Louis Rezner, father of George Rezner, first employee of the company to enter the armed services.

Red Wings vs. Camp Grant this Sunday

The Camp Grant "Warriors" baseball team, victorious in 22 out of their 27 games this season, will oppose the Red Wings Sunday, Aug. 1, at Recreation Park.

The "Warriors" have two big leaguers on their pitching staff, Russ Bauers, formerly of Pittsburgh Pirates, and Bob Carpenter of the New York Giants. The first of the squad is composed of minor and major league talent. Last year, the Camp Grant team defeated Arlington by a 4-3 score.

The "Red Wings" will be out in full strength and from all appearances will give the soldiers a good game.

Last Wednesday the "Red Wings" beat the Douglas Aircraft team 7 to 1 in a twilight game.

On Tuesday the "Red Wings" evened the score with Elmhurst by defeating them in a game of errors, 7-6.

The last two games were played with a patched up lineup due to injuries and absences but the entire squad will be on hand for the Camp Grant game.

Next Sunday's game is the best attraction on the Red Wing schedule.

Sunday, Aug. 22, opponents will be Joe Green's Chicago Giants. Joe is known as the funniest man in baseball.

Car burns as driver eats

Fred Fischer of Elmhurst rd., Prospect Heights, usually picks up his passenger from Wauconda on the corner of Rand and Elmhurst roads. Last Friday morning he decided to eat his breakfast at El Rando while he waited for him. He had just been inside a short time when someone ran in to tell him that his car was on fire! He dashed out and saw, what was his nice new green Ford coupe, a mass of flames shooting out from every window, the interior a blazing inferno. The fire department had been called, and in the meantime, Mr. Fischer and several of the onlookers tried to extinguish the flames with buckets of water, but it was burning too rapidly. The fire truck then came along and finally put out the fire.

The whole interior of the car was burned and all the windows and window frames. Part of the windshield fell over the gear shift rod, and a small piece of it was all that remained, still hanging on the rod. The only things that didn't burn inside the car, were the parts made of steel, such as the framework, steering post and wheel, and springs in the seat.

Mr. Fischer does not know just what caused it to burn but whatever it was, it must have started while he was driving, in order to burn so rapidly in such a short time.

He had had his army induction papers in the car, but for some reason had taken them out of the glove compartment just a few days before. He lost several papers in the fire, and the only thing that wasn't damaged, was a small picture of himself. That was unusual, as photographs are usually affected by heat, and catch fire very easily.

District 25 budget ready for inspection

An official notice in this issue announces that the budget of Dist. 25 for the coming year is available for inspection of interested taxpayers. Final action on the budget will be taken by the board of education at a meeting Aug. 7.

A number of the present teachers have recently decided to leave school teaching for other work and have forwarded their resignations to Supt. Clabaugh.

Mr. Vanderbeek, assistant principal, is looking for a new place of abode as the board of education desires to make alterations in their property at 407 N. Evergreen which will hereafter house the kindergarten.

As announced previously, three additional teachers will be added to the staff this year. The removal of the kindergarten from the north school building makes room for one new teacher. Remodeling of one large room in the south school into two rooms, affords quarters for a second. The third new instructor will have charge of the physical education program of both schools.

Those Tomatoes --

First tomato honors

Honors for the first tomatoes to ripen this year in Scarsdale go to Mr. Charles O'Hagan, who had his "first" about ten days ago. Moreover the O'Hagan tomatoes were among the latest planted. Mighty fast work, thinks his neighbor, Judge Carl M. Behrens, who was a runner-up in the "tomato race."

Pride goeth before —

John Firnbach, of N. Pine ave., is more proud of his tomatoes than of anything or everything else in his garden. In fact he is so proud of his work that each morning he takes his entire family on a tour of inspection to see how the tomatoes are coming along.

Mrs. Herman Hinz, a neighbor, thought it was a shame they were not progressing any faster than they were, so one night recently when all was peaceful and quiet she slipped in among the tomatoes and fastened a red electric light bulb to one of the plants. Next morning Mr. Firnbach glimpsed the brilliant red from his window and called his family to behold his FIRST RIPE TOMATO, but, alas, it was only a bulb. Unlike fairy stories, no fairy princess had come in the night, touched it with her wand, and changed it into the real thing.

Did his face get red?

Forrest Davis, Arlington Heights village clerk, was doing a lot of talking a couple of weeks ago concerning a big "ripe" tomato on his vines. When Martin Schreiber, district Public Service manager, dropped into the treasurer's office last week, Forrest again told his story, taking a lot of glory for his wonderful tomatoes. Schreiber inquired "how many plants have you?" "Twelve," said the clerk. The Public Service official nonchalantly repied, "It is too bad you do not have a patch of 150 tomato plants, then you would have a dozen tomatoes the size of cantaloupes, as I have."

Davis did not know that Mr. Schreiber is the king tomato grower of Barrington.

Villagers asked to supply funds for cigarettes

Residents of Arlington Heights will notice milk bottles placed around town in which they are asked to put donations for "Cigarettes for Servicemen."

Merle Guild Post No. 208, The American Legion, has arranged with one of the leading cigarette manufacturers to purchase cigarettes at 5c per package. These are sent to our fighting forces overseas, with all shipping costs paid by the manufacturer.

Each package has a greeting from Arlington Heights, and each carton contains acknowledgement cards which are signed by the recipients and returned to Merle Guild post.

This is an opportunity for everyone to buy a package of cigarettes at the low cost of 5c, knowing that some fighting man overseas will get it. It will also let them know 'over there' that Arlington Heights is doing its bit.

Red Cross canteen ladies seek juke box for Legion hall

Arlington Heights canteen corps of the Red Cross are seeking a juke box to be placed in the Legion building for the special purpose of providing music for the send-offs of selective service men.

"The gift of a juke box would be a great thing," says Mrs. M. J. Hannigan, head of the canteen, "but the need is so great that the ladies are ready to raise the necessary funds to purchase a juke box, if one can be had at a reasonable price."

Any who may have information regarding the box is asked to phone either selective service headquarters or Mrs. Hannigan.

The Red Cross canteen corps and the Bundles for America were both doing their part Saturday morning when the latest contingent left for service. The canteen corps served the breakfast and passed around the cigarettes and candy. Bundles for America women were present in uniform and distributed the comfort kits to the boys who were leaving.

Paddock Publications was the host.

CAP drives for army air corps cadets

Probably no branch of the U. S. army has more "Esprit de Corps" — more enthusiasm of its members — more public recognitions — than the Army Air Corps. What boy today — whether he's six years old, or sixty — would not give his eye teeth to be at the controls of that Flying Fortress or that P-38 that he sees thundering overhead.

Sure, Mussolini's been dumped on the garbage heap, but there's still work to be done before his brother rats join him — work which only the Army air corps can do, too. Men from 17 to 26 are still needed badly. Not just any man, however — the requirements for an Air Corps cadet are still extremely high. You, Sir, may be able to qualify for this branch of the service and not realize it. If you can, you are extremely lucky. A $12,000 course of training in aviation and brother, what that will mean to you after the war is over. The prestige of silver wings. The individual job you will have in bringing home final victory. The fine pay and extra good chances of advancement (look at the number of majors and even colonels in their twenties that the army air corps boasts).

The Civil Air Patrol, now an auxiliary branch of the U. S. Army, has just been given authority to help any eligible lad get into the army air corps. Preliminary tests will be given that will show whether or not a formal application should be made. Then, C. A. P. will help the candidate fill out his application. The local C. A. P. Squadron at Palwaukee Airport, located at Milwaukee avenue and Palatine road, are ready to give advice, answer questions, conduct preliminary tests and generally furnish real help to any north or northwest suburban man. Fridays from 6 p. m. to 10 p. m., Saturday afternoons and all day Sunday, C. A. P. members will be at Palwaukee for this purpose. Candidates passing their preliminary tests will be given a free "hop" by C. A. P. pilots if they so desire.

Whether you are 18 to 26 and want to go after your "wings" now, or are 17 and want to continue in school as a member of the Air Corps enlisted reserve for a year, here is your chance:

The time: Friday evening, Saturday afternoon, or all day Sunday.

The Place: Civil Air Patrol headquarters, Palwaukee airport.

The Purpose: To investigate the greatest opportunity ever offered young men in history to serve their country.

The victory garden mystery or "Who picked the beans?"

Who done it? Who picked the beans—and beets? That is what William Neuman and George Hieber are wondering. Some woman—and it was a woman, investigators are sure—went through the victory gardens owned and painstakingly cultivated by these two men and picked beans from both gardens and beets from Mr. Hieber's. The only clue to this baffling mystery was a comb dropped in the Hieber garden. The owner may have it by calling at the Hieber home on W. Sigwalt St.

Sherwood gardeners set "traps"

The garden pillagers of Sherwood are more youthful, being between four and eight years old, and thus often more elusive. One gardener had his early tomatoes picked off the vines before they were ripe, so has set such complicated "traps" that even he often does not know where they are.

In addition the children have been told that being caught in any garden will result in a hurry call to the police department. And the offenders will spend the night in jail with only bread and water for supper.

Finally, one six year old girl has been appointed a deputy policewoman and proudly sports a badge of office which says "Knights of the Round Table, Century of Progress, 1933."

Correction on ceiling price of onions

The Herald wishes to correct a serious error on the onion ceiling price published last week. The OPA states that the price for graded onions in 50 lb. sacks is $1.70 FOB country shipping point.

The original article was supposed to refer to onion sets on which no ceiling price has yet been announced.

Lutherans to install new teacher Sunday

Mr. Eugene Burger will be inducted as a regular teacher of St. Peters Lutheran school. The solemn rite of installation will be held in both services Sunday morning at 9:30 and 11 a. m. Pastor Fricke will conduct the ceremony and preach the sermon on the text: "Strive to show thyself a workman approved by God."

Mr. Burger calls Ft. Smith, Arkansas, his home town. He received his normal school training and his professional degree at River Forest Teachers college.

Last year he served as supply teacher, having charge of the thrid and fourth grade. He was also active as a leader in youth activities.

In recognition of his activities and services Mr. Burger has been given a permanent place on the faculty of St. Peters school.

To crack down on autos sans U.S. tag Aug. 1

Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, stated there has been a lagging in the sale of Motor Vehicle Use Tax Stamps for the fiscal year of 1944. He added that this was due to a large extent to various rumors of there being a repeal of the tax law.

The Federal Motor Use Vehicle Tax Law is still in effect, he said, and it is encumbent on motor vehicle users immediately to purchase stamps for their vehicles.

The law provides these stamps must be purchased and displayed on the vehicle on or before July 1 of the fiscal year. Mr. Harrison, however, stated that he would take no action against non-purchasers or against those who are not displaying the stamp until after July 31.

He warned all car owners to purchase their stamps immediately, and called attention to the provisions of the law which provide a $25 fine for failure to purchase or display the stamp after it has been purchased.

Mr. Harrison stated that immediately after the first of August he will assign deputy collectors to make an intensive drive against delinquent purchasers, and that in flagrant cases the matter would be referred to the United States District Attorney for presentation to the Federal Courts.

Auxiliary firemen are organized

The Auxiliary Firemen, a unit of the OCD, have a new function now. They will help fill vacancies on the roll of Arlington Heights fire department.

This plan came into existence when Fire Chief Jahn thought it would be too bad to let all the valuable training the auxiliaries have had, go to waste. They are fully trained in various fire-fighting techniques. In addition it will help the regular fire department in that they will have a field of reserves upon which to draw as vacancies occur.

The auxiliaries will attend weekly practices of the regular company.

Chief of auxiliaries is Kurt Stoeckel. Edwin Wilke is assistant chief, and secretary-treasurer is John Bakalar; captain, Martin Engelking; lieutenant, Ray Wilke.

A joint meeting was held last Friday evening at the village hall with both the regular fire department and the auxiliary present. At this time the above appointments were made and refreshments were served at the conclusion.

Dr. C. E. Hill leaves for duty with navy

Dr. C. E. Hill, Arlington Heights dentist, has received notice from the navy that he has been commissioned a lieutenant, senior grade, and reports for duty some time next week.

Dr. Hill will report in the East for a brief training period for naval customs, courtesy, etc. After that he will be assigned to an active post.

The Hill family will remain in Arlington Heights for the time being.

Few new tires are available

Arlington Heights rationing board this week has 89 applications for first grade tires, but the week's quota is only three. Eighty-six must go without new tires.

A tire crisis faces the owners of automobiles that will become so acute within the next few months that a large part of the cars used for pleasure driving will be on jacks. It will not be the lack of sufficient gasoline that will put them there. It will be because car owners have not protected their tires.

For some reason the general public is not buying recaps. They are trusting to luck that they will be able to buy tires when their present ones wear out. Those autoists who allow their present tires to be worn so far that they can not be recapped will not only be unable to get new tires of any grade but will not be issued gas coupons.

The rationing boards have been asked to crack down hard on autoists who disregard the report of the tire inspectors, who inspect and report the condition of each tire inspected. When any tire needs recapping, it is the obligation of the car owner to have it done.

Chairman Mitchell of the Barrington board stated this week that thereafter no gas coupons will be issued for cars, whose owners make no effort to prolong the life of tires now in use. He had just returned from an area meeting held in St. Charles and attended by members of seventeen ration boards. The critical tire situation was outlined to the board members who were directed to carry the news to their home communities.

There are not enough tires available to fill half of the present applications. The board members are not required and they do not fill applications in the order of their receipt. The eligibility of the car owner is the first requisite.

A survey made among local tire men showed that recaps can be delivered from a week to ten days from the time that order is given.

Ration boards are passing on through the local press the warning of what is certain to happen if autoists do not realize the danger that confronts them.

No certificates are required for recaps. They can be ordered from any tire dealer or garage.

A closer check of tire inspections and practices of tire inspectors will be followed hereafter by the local boards. The inspectors will be required to state definitely on their reports the existing condition of tires.

Employment in a war plant or other necessary occupation is no guarantee that tires and gas will be forthcoming. The owners of cars must cooperate. Excessive speed by a large percentage of autoists is also causing unnecessary wear on tires.

Junkman has a junk fire; smoke house is fire No. 2

Two fires within twenty minutes of each other were the reasons for a fire alarm Tuesday at Arlington Heights. A few firemen answered a silent alarm at the smoke house of the Krause market caused by a bonfire. The other blaze was among some junk in the basement of the residence at 22 S. Dunton, the home of Paul Incaprero, official junk dealer of the village.

Merle Guild Post American Legion Mid-summer festival

The mid-summer festival, an annual affair for Merle Guild Post No. 208, the American Legion, will be held in Douglas ave., and at the Recreation Park, in Arlington Heights, from August 11 to August 15 inclusive.

Rides for the children will include the merry go round, ponies, etc., and for the grown ups, children accompanied by their parents or any one wishing a thrill, there will be the tilt-a-whirl, ferris wheel, etc.

There will be skill games for all and they will afford much amusement and skill testing for those who play them.

The ever popular bingo game will have unusually attractive prizes for the winners. These prizes will consist of items which any person can make good use of at home and around the village.

The auxiliary ladies will operate the refreshment booth where tasty sandwiches, soft drinks, ice cream cones, etc., can be purchased.

As a new feature this season, a beautiful ten tube Crosley combination radio and phonograph will be awarded to some lucky person at the close of the festival on Saturday evening, August 15.

Tickets for this wonderful instrument can be purchased from any member of the post, at most of the business houses in the village, or at the radio booth during the festival.

The American Legion is a service organization and the help of all community spirited and civic minded persons is needed to make this affair the success that it deserves. We all hope that our BOYS will be returning from service soon and the American Legion will then be called upon to exert the talents for which it has been known for the past 25 years, among which will be the returning of them to civil occupations and other rehabilitation work. There are many other items on the Legion community service program which merit the support of US ALL.

Bring your friends to this festival and watch them enjoy a grand time with you.

JOTTINGS BY THE BETTER FILMS COMMITTEE

Beg your pardon, kids, for switching a picture last Saturday. You came to see Henry Aldrich get glamour, but somehow or other he changed over to your favorite cowboy, "Hoppy" Cassidy. You see, upon second thought we decided that Henry's glamour was a bit spotty and that you would prefer to watch Hoppy doing his stuff. Well, he did it alright and we know you were satisfied with the change.

"TANKS A MILLION" got plenty of laughs from the juvenile audience. Watching a dumb rookie in his clumsy way trip up the tough sergeant produced squeals of laughter. We would suppose that the kids were delighted to see the sergeant get his foot into it, because of their natural sympathy for the under dog. Come to think of it, that's a good American trait.

If the audience at Saturday's matinee will enjoy "BOOP-BOOP-A-DOOP" as much as the cast did in producing it, why everybody will be delighted.

The neighborhood gang, bound together by deep, dark secrets in the "Lone Wolf Band," is meeting to initiate new members, who are quite willing to be victims for the privilege of being "in" on all the mysterious doings. They are not entirely clear about their secret work, but they are quite determined to keep this a "stag" affair by excluding all women. Their intentions are firm enough but the boys discover soon enough that you can't keep women out of anything, even strictly masculine undertakings. The girls do succeed in breaking into this exclusive male society and messing up the solemn ritual. These female interlopers, in fact, cop all the honors of the day, when they capture a band of wanted thieves, who fall into their trap. It won't do for women to appear too superior in male eyes and so like smart girls they compensate for their intrusion by giving their $500.00 award to the club. Well, the boys can't argue against $500.00 and so the girls are "in."

After all, clever girls, eh? Come to the matinee Saturday, 1:30 p. m. and watch them make suckers of the boys.

This complicated comedy of errors is handled by the following cast: Buddy Volz, Billy Lathan, Paul Miller, Dick Arnold, Ted Savage, Norman Ashcraft, Jimmy Fricke, Dick Sturm, Nancy McCarthy, Judy Shaffer, Peggy Ann Sieburg, Marilyn Franke, Joan Lathan and Ronni Baumann.

Your Better Films committee has reason to be proud of the film program selected for this Saturday. We offer two full length feature films which have everything in their appeal to children and besides are entirely wholesome. You and your youngster will find satisfying entertainment in "FOLLOW THE BAND" and "JUNIOR ARMY."

"FOLLOW THE BAND" is a high grade musical picture, brightened by sparkling vocal and band numbers.

It is a success story of a Vermont hired farm hand, whose talent on the trombone linked with persistence in the face of handicaps, finally earn for him top billing in a big radio program and in a famous band. This is your modern Horatio Alger story of the small town boy who makes good. Pictures like this one are an inspiration to youngsters to do their best in the struggle of life. (Leo Carrillo handles the comedy situations).

Freddy Bartholomew and the "Dead-End Kids" rub elbows in a touching film story "JUNIOR ARMY." Freddy, a cultured English boy with a bit of snobbishness, just doesn't 'fit' at first in a boy's military academy, and its ringleaders of rowdy, red blooded American boys. Realizing keenly his failure to gain acceptance, Freddy tries frantically to win their approval and live up to their code. The scenes, showing the refined and sensitive boy's determination to achieve toughness, are heart throbbing. His stubborn loyalty to his classmates gets him into difficulties with the faculty which threatens to expell him. We won't spoil your anticipation by revealing the ending, except to tell you that all ends well for Freddy.

Really, folks, Mr. Knapp and your Better Films committee have gone all out financially in arranging this top notch program. Your appreciation is measured exactly by your attendance.

We are going to great lengths in the final community sponsored matinee next Saturday, August 7. It will be, we hope, a worthy climax of our efforts for this summer. The movie will stress the patriotic theme in one of the greatest films produced by Cecil Be DeMille "LAND OF LIBERTY."

To date we haven't succeeded in booking it, but Mr. Knapp is pulling all strings to get it for Arlington Heights. Our Little Theater will close a profitable season with two playlets "Hat Shop," and "Here Comes Aunt Sarah." We'll tell you more about the season's last entertainment next week.

Ask a Doctor Not a Druggist

by C. W. LUSSMAN of Sieburg Pharmacy

Every day the conscientious druggist explains to a number of people that it is the doctor's province to diagnose, the druggist's to fill prescriptions.

A physician is trained to take into consideration every factor of disease. Age, sex, employment, temperament, heredity, environment, for all play their part in illness. The doctor patiently unravels this individual pattern and arrives at the basic cause of a malady.

The druggist's skill lies in precisely compounding the specific ordered by the doctor.

DON'T scrap any tire 'till we've looked at it—and the reason why our Government has made it easier to get your tires recapped without a ration certificate, is so that tires can be saved before they have worn past the SAFE recapping point. You don't need ration board certification to have your tires recapped. And you have only to drive around to us for expert advice as to how your tires are wearing, and whether it's time to recap—to save rubber and get thousands of miles more wear!

1. First we carefully probe any apparent worn spots, skiving out injured rubber.
2. Inside areas are buffed parallel to the cords. Air hose blows away dust and loose material.
3. Coat of cement is applied to buffed area which is then thoroughly dried.
4. New material is rolled onto casing; tire is placed into cutting chamber; finally grooved.

Carrot Ring with Cheese Roll-Ups

Carrot Ring with Cheese Roll-Ups, Mrs. Michael De Met, McDonald rd.: Make a white sauce by combining 3 tablespoons melted butter, 3 tablespoons sifted flour, 1 cup milk, and ½ teaspoon salt. Add beaten yolks of 3 eggs and 4 cups grated carrots. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased ring mold, place in oven in pan of hot water. Bake one hour in slow oven (325 degrees). Turn out on platter and serve with ring filled with green peas. Serve with Cheese Roll-Ups, which are made by sifting 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, and 1 teaspoon salt together. Cut 4 tablespoons shortening into the flour mixture. Add ⅔ cup milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently. Roll out one-quarter inch thick and cut in strips 3 inches wide. Spread with ¾ cup grated cheese. Roll lengthwise. Cut in 3 inch lengths. Place on ungreased baking pan. Brush with melted butter. Bake at 450 degrees 12 to 15 minutes. Serve hot. This will make about 18 roll-ups.

Announce classes for local garden show

The gardeners of the village of Mt. Prospect are getting ready for the flower show held under the auspices of the M. P. Woman's Club.

Although the garden show is stressing exhibits of victory gardens and canned goods there will be plenty of space allowed for display of flowers. Mrs. Stephen Kline has charge of the classification and arrangement of material.

The specimen classes on the schedule are as follows:

Tubers: Dahlias, cactus, begonia, tuberoses, miscellaneous.

Bulbs: Phillipine lily, gladiola, tigridia, canna, any other lily.

Shrubs and Vines: Crape Myrtle, buddleias, hydrangea, high bush cranberry, gourds.

Roses: Specimen bloom, any variety.

Perrenials: Phlox, any variety, azaleamum, shasta daisy, dwarf aster, gaillardia, coralbells, dianthus.

Annuals: Asters, celosia, marigold, zinnia, snapdragons, scabiosa.

Potted Plants

Mrs. Maurice B. Pendleton has charge of the classification and arrangement of potted plants. In this class are: Any house grown or greenhouse grown specimen.

Any worthy exhibit not provided for in the schedule.

Flower Arrangements

Mrs. E. A. Glaeser is in charge of the classification and organization of materials on the tables in flower arrangements. Flower arrangements have always been popular in the Mt. Prospect garden shows. Mrs. M. J. Pluth will take care of the organization of miniature arrangements at the show. The following is the schedule of flower arrangements.

Small arrangement in glass container, six to eight inches in height.

Arrangement suitable for an informal dinner table.

Arrangement in cool colors, suitable for a terrace, breakfast table. (Note) Cool colors are the violets, blues, blue-greens and greens.

Arrangement in warm colors, suitable for a hall table. (Note) Warm colors include yellow-greens, yellows, oranges, reds and purples.

Arrangements by Novices. (A novice is an exhibitor who has not taken a prize in a show.)

Arrangement of any flowers in a low container.

Arrangement of garden zinnias for an informal luncheon.

Arrangement of white flowers in a green container.

Miniatures. (Any arrangement less than 4 inches tall).

Table Settings

Mrs. W. A. Hotz is in charge of the table settings for the show. The scheduled classes are as follows:

Bridal Buffet luncheon table—military style.

Other Bridal tables.

Tables of the month.

Mantle arrangements in a pair of containers.

Picnic tables.

Terrace tables.

Garden tables.

Anyone who has participated in one of the Mt. Prospect garden shows before will not have to be urged to compete again this year. The thrill of knowing that your produce or arrangement deserved a blue ribbon is enough to keep you trying. For newcomers who wish to learn more about flower arranging or who wish to have their garden products judged, this is an excellent chance. The Mt. Prospect garden shows always have good judges who may give you just the tip you need to do better next year.

BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin M'Koun

BACK in 1940, an American news correspondent named Carroll Alcott, broadcasting from the international settlement in Shanghai, used to begin his program with the words: "This broadcast is brought to you by courtesy of the Bake-rite Company, Shanghai's leading bakers and makers of better bread. The jam tonight is by the courtesy of Mr. Suzuki and the Japanese Army."

CARROLL ALCOTT

Interrupting his radio program was just one phase of the persecutions Alcott endured from the Japanese during his fifteen years in the Far East. He had too much curiosity about what was going on and too much willingness to make known what he found out to suit the warlords of the Land of the Rising Sun. They tried every means they could think of to make him go home — and when that failed they even attempted abduction and assassination. For many months he went around in a bullet-proof vest and with an armed guaard. He tells his amazing story in "My War With Japan."

The first lesson Alcott learned about Japanese ethics was taught him by a Japanese bootmaker in Manila, from whom he had ordered a pair of shoes. They were to have broad toes, rubber heels, and the color was to be tan. A few days later the bootmaker brought him a pair of black shoes with pointed toes, insisted that was what the newspaperman had ordered and refused to take them back. Alcott responded with a tongue-lashing in which he accused him of being, among other things, a liar. The bootmaker departed from his habitual immobility at that and retorted, "It is no lie to speak improper to white man." Immediately, as though he regretted this outspokenness, he became silent. But in that remark, Alcott believes he got the key to why the Japanese deal so openly in prevarications and the game of double cross without feeling any shame or guilt.

The full story of the bombing of Tokyo—"Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," by Captain Ted W. Lawson, the galalant lad who lost his leg on this expedition, is to be one of the Book-of-the-Month selections for August. Along with this exciting story, the Club is also sending its members "Origins of the American Revolution," by John C. Miller, a book which one outstanding American historian calls "the best ever written on the American Revolution."

In "What You Should Know About Spies and Saboteurs," Will Irwin and T. M. Johnson advise the layman to inform the F. B. I. or Army and Navy Intelligence of any reasonable suspicion of sabotage or spy activity. They also offer suggestions as to what does and does not constitute a reasonable suspicion. Among the hysterical notes which have reached official headquarters from well meaning civilians was one which reported that Japanese disguised as salmon were swimming up the Columbia River. Another asserted that German spies were communicating with one another through water faucets.

News of Wheeling Home bureau

Wheeling Home Bureau met at the home of Mrs. W. Franke, 120 South Pine St., Thursday afternoon, July 22.

The major project, "What Happens to Your Food and Why" was presented by Mrs. Camp and Mrs. Fellingham. They gave an interesting talk on the subject, pointing out the importance of having a well balanced diet alll the time. Illustrations of the process of digestion were shown.

Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Palmer concluded their talk on "Our Southern Neighbors." A treat of moving pictures of these countries was enjoyed by all present.

Pamphlets were passed around with recipes for "Mixes for Your Pantry Shelves," including gingerbread mix, pastry mix and corn meal mix.

The usual annual picnic will be held August 27 at the home of Mrs. Fellingham. This will take the place of the regular meeting.

King Wenceslaus

"Good King Wenceslaus" of the Christmas carol was murdered by his brother in 935 and is buried in a royal chapel in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Arlington 4-H club news

At its regular Monday meeting the Big-Enough 4-H Club members saw demonstrations on "Posture and grooming" by Irene Lattof, "pressing" by Lois Scott, and "spreads for bread" by Bonnie Peterson. In addition all of the cooking girls — Bonnie, Marilyn Franke, Verdelle Duenn, Shirley Dodge, and Laura Fritz, — demonstrated a relish tray. The meeting was held at the home of Janice Hackbarth and she, together with Irene Lattof and Kathy Shanklin, served as hostess. Following the business part of the meeting, the group adjourned to the pool for a dip.

Final plans have now been made for Achievement Day to be held at the Field House Friday, August 6. The program will start at 2 p. m. The girls who made clothes will model them, while the girls who spent their time in learning to cook, will demonstrate. Full details of the program will be announced in next week's paper. Mothers and all friends of the girls are invited to attend Achievement Day.

Local delegates to citizenship conference

Mrs. Edward Fritz and Mrs. Marshall Lindberg, both of Arlington Heights, will be the Cook County delegates to the Citizenship Conference to be held at Mac Murray college, Jacksonville, Ill., next week. The sessions will take place on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

In addition to the constructive work to be done at the conference a good time has been planned for the delegates. One evening an international stunt night will be held and delegates from this area were asked to bring the makings of a colonial costume.

Mrs. Lindberg is county treasurer of Home Bureau and Mrs. Fritz is membership chairman.

Objects to acceptance of Lonnquist plat

L. W. Kester, as an adjoining property owner to a proposed subdivision of war homes, is taking issue with Axel Lonnquist over statements made by the latter in a letter presented at a meeting of the Mt. Prospect village board July 6th and which appeared in the Mt. Prospect Herald July 9th. The letter of Mr. Kester was read at the July 15th session of the Mt. Prospect board and copies were directed to be forwarded to the zoning board and planning commission which have the proposed subdivision plat under consideration.

Mr. Kester's letter follows:

July 14, 1943.

To The Honorable
Board of Trustees,
Mount Prospect, Ill.

Gentlemen:

In Mr. Lonnquist's letter to you of July 6th, as published in the Mount Prospect Herald of July 9th, apparently his first concern is to establish his integrity and responsibility of performance. Will you look at the record of the past three years?

First: The owners of the three homes built to the north of Lonnquist Blvd. have spoken to me very definitely of the dealings which they experienced with Mr. Lonnquist in delays and difficulty in having promises fulfilled.

Second: One of these owners advised that he paid for the construction of a garage at the time his house was built. This garage has never been constructed.

Third: Three years ago a permit was taken out for the construction of a building, and an excavation was made. In spite of numerous complaints and promises of remedy, this excavation is still unfilled and remains a serious hazard to children and animals, a breeding place for mosquitos and an eyesore.

Fourth: Two years ago permission was given by your Board for Mr. Lonnquist to put in a street of certain specifications. The only thing that has been done is to dump and spread a few loads of stone.

Fifth: Property owners still remember the long months during which the unsightly, partly wrecked, real estate office stood at the corner of Lincoln and Elmhurst Roads, in spite of all protests. This record speaks louder than any promises that Mr. Lonnquist may now put forward.

This new proposed subdivision is the same sort of plat which Mr. Lonnquist tried to put over two years ago when it was presented with a $5,000 restriction. The Zoning Commission at that time recommended a restriction comparable to that applying north of Lonnquist Blvd.. I understand that this plat was signed was neither dated nor filed. I would like to raise the question why adequate action was not taken at that time.

We people who have built north of Weller Creek did so with the understanding of certain protective restrictions. It is not fair to us to allow a material lowering of these restrictions immediately across the street. It is not fair to other property owners to prevent the growth of substantial residence districts by placing a belt of cheap houses where they will lower the standards for the whole town area.

Mr. Lonnquist states "they are to not so-called Defense Homes at all and should not be so considered." I understand that under the present rulings of WPB no home construction is permissible except Defense Homes.

Mr. Lonnquist stats "they are to be built and rented to very acceptable young executives at Douglas Air Craft." We know that they will be rented to anyone who can pay the price. Many Douglas executives may be here under six year contracts. Six years pass quickly. What then?

Mr. Lonnquist speaks of the growth and expansion of this plant after the war. I believe it is the general understanding that the Douglas Plant is purely a war project and the buildings are of that type of construction. Can we expect occupants who are in this part of the country on such a temporary basis to make improvements on rented property? I further understand that the proposal is to construct duplexes. Why not build apartments and have it over with?

Another point to be considered is the adequacy of sewer, water and other necessary utilities in the tract south of Lonnquist Blvd., including fire hydrants. This involves a question of whether or not new installations will be permitted by WPB at this time.

On the same page of the newspaper which carries Mr. Lonnquist's letter appears an article on the inadequacy of our present water supply.

Mr. Lonnquist says that these homes will bring tax revenue to the village. These homes will not bring in taxes to the taxing where they are most needed, however, namely, the school district. The property south of Lonnquist Blvd. is in School District 58 and not 57. Since District 58 does not now maintain a school, children in that area can demand the service of the already crowded Mount Prospect school, with tuition fee paid by District 58. No tax will accrue from homes without children of school age.

You have appointed a Planning Commission consisting of men who have had experience and have given study to the problems of village development. May I suggest your careful consideration of the recommendations of your Planning Commission in arriving at a decision that will be to the best interests of permanent residents, in the protection and improvement of our village.

Yours respectfully,

L. W. Kester.

Bible school closes with picnic

The seventh annual vacation Bible School of the Wheeling Presbyterian church closed with a picnic Friday, July 23. The school this year was a union school with the U. E. church of North Northfield. An average of 45 children attended the school.

Leaders in the school were Rev. and Mrs. Lewis, Rev. H. J. Quigley, Mrs. Merle Willis, Mrs. John Schmidt, and the Misses Ingrid Nielsen, Doris and Shirley Wieder and Peggy Kruse. A special recognition service for Wheeling pupils was held in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning when the children presented the work of the school.

The following children received awards for a perfect record in their work: Dennis Haas, a beginner; Billy Landon, Jo Anne Seevers, Betty Schmidt, Barbara Schwab, Cynthia Hale, primaries, and Dona Jean Miller and Jo Anne Hoffmann, juniors. Honorable mention went to Sally and Donald Werhane.

Wheeling public library will be closed during the last month of summer vacation. Attention of all patrons of the library is called to note that the library hours on next Monday evening, August 2, will be the last until Monday, Sept. 13. Withdrawals during recent weeks have been too small to warrant the opening of the library throughout this period. All books now out should be returned next Monday evening without fail.

Delbert Dobbins has been vacationing on his grandparents farm in Michigan. He accompanied his aunt, Mrs. Ansil Merry of Waukegan, taking a boat across the lake to St. Joseph and continuing by bus.

On Wednesday evening, July 21, 20 relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Walter Scanlon to surprise Mrs. Glen Schmidt with a stork shower. Many beautiful and useful gifts in pink and blue were brought for the baby-to-be. The evening was spent playing bunco, and refreshments were served. All present enjoyed a delightful evening.

Henry Grandt, Sr., 85 year old pioneer of Cook county, passed away at the home of his son, Henry, Jr., on Thursday evening, July 25, following a lingering illness.

Wheeling Aces baseball team lost to Palatine last Sunday by a score of 4-1. The game was played on the Palatine high school grounds. Lack of fan support may have contributed to the errors responsible for losing the game for the Wheeling boys.

Mrs. Kenneth Paulson has been confined to her home suffering from a slight concussion of the brain received in an auto accident last Sunday. Mrs. Paulson was turning off Milwaukee avenue at the home of her sister, Mrs. Hartley. A motorist behind, failed to get her signal, crashing the rear of her car which rammed a tree in front of the home.

Beth Bingham given showers

Saturday afternoon a linen shower and dessert luncheon was given for her at the home of Mrs. Ralph Sandeen at Mt. Prospect. Decorations were in red, white and blue, and a ship model, symbolic of the coast guard, her fiance's branch of the service, rested on the "sea" of gifts. Beth "christened" the ship with a shower of rice before undoing her gifts.

Miss Bingham will become the bride of Richard Duddy 2-c Petty Officer, instructor in the Coast Guard School at Manhattan Beach, New York, Saturday, August 7.

Edna had preceded her parents, coming to Illinois the first of the month in order to attend the summer camp of Wheeling troop.

Chaplain Morrison is on the staff of the station hospital at the Shenango Personnel Repl. Depot at Greenville, Pa., and has been very busy. Patients at the hospital average about 700. The meeting of the Elk Grove Home Bureau was held Wednesday, July 21, at the home of Mrs. Geo. Scharringhausen.

Two wartime idea booklets for homemakers

In the interest of the national wartime nutrition and food conservation program, the Public Service Company offers you two valuable booklets, without cost.

Home Canning

The first of these is entitled "Canning . . . What You Should Know About It." Both beginners and veteran home canners will find this booklet has the answers! It tells when and how to "put up" fruits and vegetables. It explains the various ways to do your own canning.

Home Dehydrating

The vital wartime necessity for preserving surplus foods from Victory Gardens for winter meals prompted development work by the Home Economics Department of the Public Service Company, and this resulted in the preparation of a booklet on gas oven dehydration.

The 18-page booklet entitled "Home Dehydration with a Gas Oven" tells how to prepare foods for drying, shows a simple method of dehydrating fruits and vegetables, tells how to store dehydrated foods and how to prepare them for the table.

While dehydration is not offered as a substitute for canning, it does fill a need where canning equipment, especially the pressure canner recommended for processing non-acid vegetables, may not be available. To gas range users in urban areas, dehydration offers a means of preserving garden surpluses that might otherwise go to waste.

Get These Booklets Today

The booklets on canning and dehydration are yours for the asking. Come in and get your copy of each today so you'll be ready to help your country preserve its limited supply of food.

Virginia

Lt. John Sicks of Wheeling arrived home Sunday on a ten-day furlough. Lt. Sicks has been stationed at Camp Pickett, Virginia.

A recent letter from Africa from Clifford Grandt C.M. 3/c of Wheeling stated that he had been enjoying news from the Cook County Herald but had been missing letters from home.

His family has been writing regularly but perhaps, as has been the experience of some of the other boys, his letters were held up while the paper happened to go through and Clifford may be assured that there are always letters on the way.

"I have been transferred from Manhattan Beach Coast Guard Training Station to the naval training station at Norfolk, Virginia," writes S 2/c Oren Breda of Arlington Heights.

"The Coast Guard is training 60 men as torpedomen aboard their new destroyer escort vessels which are used in convoy work. I'll have the honor of being one of the first torpedomen in the Coast Guard.

"I joined up with Dick Goedke, the mayor's son, and we went through boot camp together for fourteen weeks. Now we have been split up and I don't know where he is or where he is going. Probably the next time I see him will be when the war is over, which will be soon I hope.

Florida

Cpl. Carl Huter of Palatine, who is stationed in Miami Beach, Florida, writes that he looks forward to receiving the Enterprise and that it really keeps him posted on the news of home.

He goes on, "I've been stationed here at Miami Beach nearly ten months and sure was glad to be here last winter. Our camp is located right on the edge of the ocean and we get to do quite a lot of swimming when we are off duty.

"I was married here in March, and my wife and I have an apartment about a block from camp.

"There isn't much excitement around here. We fired target practice with the big guns a few weeks ago and it really shook up the town. It shook up buildings a mile away.

"My address is: Battery C, 53rd Coast Artillery, Miami Beach, Florida, 39."

Home on furlough on June 24 was Pfc. Otto Hajek who is stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas. When he arrived at home in Palatine, he was surprised to find his brother, Henry, also there, the latter from Camp Grant.

Feed crisis leads to shifts in meat animals

Unwise adjustments in livestock production are being made by some farmers as a result of the uneven distribution of feed, according to a statement by the outlook committee of the University of Illinois, College of Agriculture. H. C. M. Case, head of agricultural economics, is chairman.

Some farmers are selling unfinished hogs and marketing breeding stock, while others are holding back corn which normally would be sold at this time of the year, according to the statement. Still others who normally market considerable corn have greatly expanded their hog production.

Even in view of the present crop prospects and the reduced carryover of old corn as compared with a year ago, feeding hogs to lighter weights should meet the situation, according to the statement. This would make it unnecessary to slaughter unfinished animals or to liquidate breeding herds unduly.

"The present policy of the government to give the farmer who sells corn to an elevator the advantage of any increase in market price before October 31 should encourage the owner of corn to market it as his prospect of a crop improves. On many farms it may be profitable for the experienced livestock feeder who owns corn to buy feeder pigs from those whose corn prospects are not promising.

"With the continued prospective demand for hogs, farmers should find it advisable to hold enough breeding stock to maintain their normal production. As the season progresses or conditions change, further adjustments may become advisable.

"The main point is that the present national feed supplies and prospective production, if properly distributed, do not justify radical changes in farm pians, such as heavy liquidation of unfinished hogs and breeding herds."

What is needed, according to the statement, is adjustment in all lines of livestock production so that available feed will be used for those classes of livestock which will use it for the most efficient production of food.

"Feed should be used first for milk and egg production because that is the most efficient use which can be made of it for food supplies. Hogs rank next in efficiency in use of grain feed. Some grain also is necessary to make the best use of available roughage in both beef and mutton production.

"Our limited supply of available feed may be conserved by using less grain in beef and mutton production, as well as by feeding livestock to lighter weights or lower finish. With the large number of hogs on farms and the fact that hogs normally use about 60 per cent of the feed corn, it is advisable to avoid carrying them to excessive weights or even to more than 220 pounds."

Shortages make re-use of fruit crates necessary

Fruit, egg and vegetable containers should be re-used as many times as possible, since direct war requirements for nails, wire and lumber make it impossible to produce all the new ones that could be used, says V.W. Kelley, extension horticulturist, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Not only has increased food production created a greater demand for containers than usual, but also more are needed to meet the additional export needs of the military forces and other government agencies.

These containers include various types of baskets, hampers and bushel baskets; wire-bound citrus boxes and celery crates; L-A vegetable crates; lug boxes; bushel boxes; citrus boxes; pepper, berry and lettuce crates, and egg cases.

Empty containers may be returned to producers and packers through resale to used-container dealers or by direct sale back to growers or their organizations.

Non-Americans please note

In the last few weeks I have had occasion to be reminded of the many persons in our smaller communities that have never become citizens of our United States.

It is hard to believe there are people willing to reap the benefits and enjoy the protection and privileges of this great country, yet have no real desire to "belong."

If these same people were guaranteed safe passage, plus a bonus, back to their native land, I'll wager none would accept.

Possibly we are too generous with our aliens, we give them equality, when equality does not exist. I have to admit in terms of adversity, I have always favored giving my countrymen a means of earning a living first, and letting our aliens come second.

My citizenship is a precious thing to me, I would not cast it aside lightly. Yet, if I were to make my home on foreign soil, and decided that is the one place to rear my family and carve my future, then I would feel morally obligated to become a part of the land I adopted.

You non-Americans please remember Uncle Sam is giving you the protection of the stars and stripes, and lest you forget, we are sending our husbands, our brothers, and our sons into battle to fight and to die for you. So how about becoming one of Uncle Sam's children and becoming one of us?

Thank-you

For some reason the local paper has become more interesting to me the past few months.

It may be the articles written about some of the folks I know that catch my eye, or the pointers I get from reading about my favorite hobby, flowers, or could it be the soldiers page that pleasse me. Anyway it is a great little paper. Sure hits the spot when I have a minute to relax.

How About Quack Grass?

I have a victory garden
And I approve the sharing plan.
So I'm sharing my victory garden
With Germany, Italy, and Japan.
Appropriate for Bonito
Should be my garden ants
So that garlic eating puppet
Will have real ants for his pants.
For my rotten tomatoes
I have just the place.
I'm saving them for Tojo
To splash his ugly face.
All the little squirmy things
I'll make into a stew
To send along to Adolf
Marked from me to you.
What shall I do with the thistles
That adorn my flower beds?
I could put them into a pillow
For Der Fuhrers empty head.
With the sticks and stones I gather up
I'll sock the axis hard.
And when they're dead
I'll bring them back
For scarecrows in my yard.
Could they expect a better fate
Those hateful, hated reprobates.

Three cheers for the dads club. They could very easily be called the "mad club". I hear they organized to do something about conditions they didn't like in town.

They are doing a grand job and making some of us wake up and take notice.

The leaders are to be commended for their efforts in behalf of the younger generation.

Giant strides in oat improvment shown in tests

Giant strides in improving oats for resistance to crown (leaf) rust, stem rust and smut, together with increased yielding ability, have been made by the University of Illinois College of Agriculture during the past few years, according to a new pamphlet, "Experimental Oat Strains Outdo New Varieties," which has just been isued by the college.

Prepared by G. H. Dungan, professor of crop production, and W. L. Burlison, head of the agronomy department, the pamphlet presents data on some new, purely experimental strains that look exceptionally good. In the northern part of the state, tests at Mt. Morris show the D69 x Bond Selection 1335-3 to be best with a yield of 87.1 bushels an acre and 43 per cent of the plants erect at harvest. Second with a yield of 81 bushels and 36 per cent of the plants erect at harvest was C. I. 3607 (Markton x Rainbow) (Victoria x Richland). The Victoria x Richland C. I. 3336 strain placed third with a yield of 73.9 bushels and 42 per cent of the plants erect.

At Urbana, in central Illinois, Victoria x Richland C. I. 3310 was first with 76.4 bushels and 87 per cent erect plants. D69 x Bond Selection 1335-3 was second with 75.6 bushels and 96 per cent erect plants. Tama C. I. 3502 placed third with 75 bushels and 83 per cent.

In southern Illinois, at Alhambra, Tama C. I. led all others with a yield of 29.9 bushels an acre and 93 per cent of the plants erect at harvest. Victoria x Richland C. I. 3337 was second with 27.8 bushels and 90 per cent erect plants. Yielding 27.8 bushels and with 93 per cent, C. I. 3607 (Markton x Rainbow) (Victoria x Richland) was third.

A new strain, D69 x Bond Selection 1335-3, yielded 14.9 bushels more than Vicland, the highest yielding commercial variety in the 1942 tests at Mt. Morris. Although it yielded only six-tenths of a bushel better than the best commercial variety at Urbana, it stood up better than any other variety in the trials. This new variety appears to possess two important features of a superior oat: high yielding ability and stiff straw. Still an experimental strain, there is no seed available commercially.

Copies of the pamphlet may be obtained from the county farm adviser or upon request to the College of Agriculture, Urbana.

Victory hastened by home canning, food expert says

Food produced by American farmers and preserved by the nation's housewives is helping win the battle of Europe just as it helped subdue North Africa, the nation's leading buyer of fresh fruits and vegetables said today.

"One major sign that American women are going all-out in the war effort is in their response to the home-canning campaign, which is bolstering home food supplies and releasing more commercially-processed food for our armed forces and for peoples freed from Axis domination," said Harvey A. Baum, head of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company's produce-buying operations. "That housewives are making 1943 the biggest home-canning year in history is indicated by a 300 per cent increase over last year in A & P sales of glass jars and other canning supplies."

Citing a news report from the Mediterranean area that food supplies have been unloaded to feed the civilian population of southeastern Sicily, Baum added:

"In Sicily alone there are at least 3,500,000 civilians, a large percentage undernourished, to whom the assurance of food will mean more than allegiance to a fading dictator. Of course, home-canned food doesn't go overseas, but each glass jar of it makes avaiable an equivalent amount for use in the thick of the fight for freedom."

Baum said the company is continuing its nationwide home-canning service by informing housewives when various fresh fruits and vegetables reach production peaks. At such times, he explained, these items are abundant, more economical and are rushed to market in fully-matured condition, making them ideal for preserving.

Cotton insulation is suggested for winter proofing

Home owners starting now to make their houses tight to save coal next winter would do well to consider cotton insulation made available recently in the retail market, says Miss Dorothy Iwig, home furnishings specialist, University of Illinois College of Agriculture. Of special interest is the fact that it can be installed very easily after the house has been built and is so light weight that a woman can handle it and do some insulating jobs herself, if necessary.

Since 1940 the U. S. Department of Agriculture has promoted use of this cotton insulation as an outlet for low-grade, short staple cotton not required for military or other fabrics. Army engineers used it for insulating maintenance buildings along the Alcan Highway, and it is now being used for trailer or "knock down" houses for defense communities, refrigerator cars, refrigerators and for some marine construction.

This cotton insulation is flame-proofed with an effective chemical solution that also repels rats, mice and household insects and prevents mildew. According to specifications it may weigh less than one ounce to the board foot, but it must be at least three quarters of an inch thick. If there is a supporting backing, this must be flexible and repel moisture. Once installed, the cotton does not sag.

At present seven firms in widely separated parts of the United States are manufacturing cotton insulation, which should make for reasonably good distribution. Retail merchants now sell it by the batt or roll and about 1,000 square feet will insulate an average attic.

Bensenville

Father Flanagan, who maintains a home for orphan boys near Omaha, Neb., visited Bensenville last week on Thursday evening, accompanied by 20 of his band boys. The band travels in a private Pullman throughout the country as an outing for the boys. Their entertainment consists of band music and catchy dialogues by members of the band. No admission was charged but all present were given the opportunity to subscribe any amount they wished for the maintenance of the home and a free will offering was taken. The attendance here was small, but those who did attend willingly contributed to the home funds.

Mr. and Mrs. Fenton spent two weeks at Devils Lake on their vacation spree, and say if they didn't have a perfectly dandy time, then who did? It seems as though the majority of Bensenville people are spending their vacations at lakes and resorts in Wisconsin, and I'm right here to say that they snow very good taste.

Miss Edna Capoot celebrated her birthday Friday. She had several girl friends over to help commemorate the joyous event.

Miss Mary Kebbers, from Chicago, is spending a few days with Miss Irene Hess. She intends to return home Thursday evening. Irene will accompany her and return the visit.

Mr. Herman Behrens had the misfortune of breaking his leg when he fell off the hay loft. Everyone hopes for his speedy recovery.

War products to become peacetime necessities

Jeeps may be new 'farm horses'; helicopter to replace busses

Products long in the development stages in peacetime, suddenly come to life in wartime. Demands of the military machine in this war have far exceeded other world struggles, thus bringing before the public many new inventions and ideas. Foremost among these is the army Jeep.

When we begin to beat our guns into plowshares, the Jeep will be available for use by hunters, anglers, farmers, ranches, rural free delivery men, railroads, forest rangers, auto repairmen, tourists, highway builders and even boy scout troops. Department of Agriculture tests give proof that it can pull a plow, harrow and other farm equipment weighing up to 1,500 pounds with less gas consumption than a tractor.

With a few changes it can be converted into a power unit to operate machinery for milking cows. It can be utilized for cutting wood, clearing land, herding cattle. Its dual role of either tractor or automobile makes it the perfect all-purpose farm vehicle. During the day it can plow the field, and at night the family can use it to ride merrily into town to see a movie. And there are plenty of American farm boys all over the world who are familiar with its use and love it.

Air busses

Helicopters, those flying vehicles which can move virtually straight up in the air and which can "land on a dime," have been for most of us nothing more than something we've seen either in photos and films of those used by the Army, or in drawings. Some of the more enthusiastic post-war dream creators have shown us pictures of the family 'copter which sometime may be the commuting vehicle that replaces the old gas-wagon.

But Howard E. Blood, president of the Norge division of Borg-Warner Corporation, has so much faith in helicopters that his company is starting production of important parts for them, and states that he believes that aplan for helicopters to replace intercity busses is a sound one. Greyhound is reported to have studied plans for converting present motor-coach terminals into helicopter terminals.

Air transport

The Office of War Information has issued a report on American air transport. Factual in character, it is nevertheless breathtaking. It gives United States commercial airlines much of the credit for the development of airways reaching to every area of the globe and flown over by the Army and Navy air transport service, as well as by the airlines. The OWI says: "A pilot on the Lisbon-New York run flew the Atlantic four times within three days. Another pilot crossed the ocean twelve times in thirteen days, making one round trip in less than twenty-four hours." Everything from heavy freight to critically wounded men and medical supplies are carried on these globe-girdling flights.

Baby heat

Portable darkrooms, packing in less than two cubic feet, all that's needed for exposing, developing, printing and enlarging photos . . . elastic braids made of vinyon plastic instead of rubber for use in feminine garments . . . Heating controls that will eliminate "stratified" temperatures, keeping baby playing on the floor as warm as the man of the house atop a step-ladder . . . Indicator lamps for aerial delivery of supplies at night by paratroopers, with Tenite plastic lens caps in varying colors to indicate types of packages in the dark.

Corn

Farmers who sell their corn to a country elevator buying for the Commodity Credit Corporation before August 10 are guaranteed extra payments to cover any increase in corn prices between the date they sell and October 31. Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, has commended farmers who sell corn to relieve shortages in war industries and for feed, and has announced that more than 6 million bushels have been purchased since July 1.

Home canning

More home canning jars and covers were made in the first five months of this year than in the entire year of 1942, in anticipation of an unprecedented volume of home canning. Housewives will profit from a study of directions that come with each box of jars or covers, for the new three-piece canning top — glass lid, metal screw band, and rubber ring — must be used differently from other types of covers. Quality of jars and covers produced this year, says WPB, is high.

Hog price

A ceiling price of $14.75 per hundredweight, Chicago basis, will be set on live hogs early in August, according to the OPA. This action was concurred in by the War Food Administration. The ceiling is below the 22-year high, but is above prices which live hogs brought before 1942.

Bottles

Many empty beverage bottles should be returned as soon as possible, says WPB's Conservation Division, to relieve the unnecessary drain on essential war production that results when new bottles must be made. All old beverage bottles can be put back into use, because they are completely cleaned and sterilized at the bottling plants.

Cars

Although the registration of private and commercial motor vehicles in 1942 was 5½% less than in the peak year 1941, it exceeded the registration of 1940 by more than half a million, Public Roads Administration of Federal Works Agency reported after completing its annual compilation of motor-vehicle registration statistics.

Burlap bags

Farmers who grow potatoes, and potato packers, can now buy as many burlap bags as they did in 1941, according to a recent ruling by the War Production Board. Previously they could buy only half that amount.

Farming Is Dangerous

The department of agriculture says that fatal farming accidents outnumber those of any other occupation.

Population

War production in and near large cities has caused wide changes in population, not only for war production centers, but for other communities. On the basis of a survey just made of registrations for the No. 2 ration book, it was found that more than half of the civilian population was concentrated in the 241 counties which make up what marketing experts call "metropolitan market areas." The other 45% lives in the remaining 2,832 counties of the country.

But the men who are trying to plan now for retail outlets to serve these population shifts recognize that many of the people who have moved to war production centers won't stay there. The National Association of Real Estate Boards found in a survey that only about 40 per cent of the people who had moved to these centers to work intend to remain when peace comes.

The study of ration book registrations showed another significant fact—that, while many rural counties had suffered civilian population losses (due in part to men going into military service) there was also a shift away from some of the larger cities where war work is not a major factor. Boston and New York, for example, apparently have lost population—to an extent larger than their likely contributions of service men, suggesting that families have moved from the cities as well as the country to go into war production jobs.

Oven canning

Home canners have been warned against the oven method of canning food by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Not only is oven canning slow and unsatisfactory, but it may lead to serious accidents as a result of misunderstanding of canning techniques. Disadvantages of oven canning mentioned by the USDA are: "Juice bubbles out or steams away; peaches and pears are likely to darken. For the vegetables that need high heat to kill bacteria, oven canning is not safe. Even though the oven goes to 250 degrees F. or higher, food inside the glass jars stays at about the boiling point." And the boiling point of water, 212 degrees F., is not sufficient heat to kill dangerous bacteria in a reasonable time in beans, peas, corn, and other non-acid vegetables and meat. For canning these, the Department recommends only a steam pressure canner, and for fruits and tomatoes the boiling water bath.

Hosiery

Women's rayon hosiery does not have to be labeled as Grade A or Grade B, the OPA said recently, although ceiling price and gauge or needle count regulations are still in force. The choice as to whether the Grade A or B mark will be placed on rayon hose is now left to the dealer.

War prisoners

Prisoners of war interned in the U. S. total 65,058, the War Department has announced. Of these, 45,355 are Germans, 19,641 are Italians, and 62 are Japanese. The Japanese are interned at Camp McCoy, Wisconsin, and the others in 37 prisoner of war camps situated in 20 states.

SKOKIE

The will of the late August Steuer, who died in Skokie Oct. 28 last, leaving $52,500 has been admitted to probate. He left his home in Skokie and most of his property to his daughter, Mildred Newman, of Skokie. He left $10,000 in trust with his daughter for his granddaughter, Rose Newman of Skokie.

The will of the late Frederick J. F. Skeel of Evanston, disposing of a $200,000 estate, has been filed for probate. Among his bequests is one of $500 to W. L. Johnson and wife of Skokie.

WHEELING

Francis W. Newell of Wheeling, who died Feb. 11, left his $2,500 estate all to his widow, Adelaide Newell, of Wheeling.

PARKS WRONG 2½ YEARS; GETS TICKET

The Des Plaines police always get their women, according to a story received this week. A lady who parked in an illegal area for two and a half years, was finally arrested and brought to court before Judge A. L. Sengstock last week. She complained that since she had been doing it so long with nothing happening, she shouldn't be arrested now. The judge countered by saying she was still breaking the law and fining her the minimum fine of one dollar.

PARK RIDGE GIRLS ACT AS SALVAGE HELPERS

A group of Park Ridge girls have taken over a man sized volunteer job of salvage collection. Twelve in all, they rode the trucks that picked up last Saturdays supply of paper in Park Ridge. In addition to these girls there are reserves who are ready to fill in as substitutes. Proving their worth, A. W. Eyer, warehouse man for the paper salvage department, said, "They were as fine help as we ever had."

New Super War Eye Locates Enemy

THESE pictures show what happens when enemy planes take off to attack Allied objectives these days. At the left, enemy planes rise from distant airfields. Radar, the new electronic super eye made possible by the electron tube, center, and now being used by United Nations fighting forces, detects the planes. Radar sends out radio waves which bounce off the metal planes and are reflected back to Allied instruments which determine the planes' location, speed, and direction. This enables interceptor planes to surprise and destroy the advancing enemy, right.

Radar is also used to locate enemy ships and surfaced submarines in darkness, fog, and far beyond the horizon, and has helped make possible many spectacular Allied land, sea and air victories. General Electric scientists, among the many American and British research men who contributed to radar development, explain that post-war navigation of ships and planes will be as safe in fog as in clear weather with the use of this newest electronics development.

LIFE WITH MOTHER

DEAR MARY—

Your last letter was quite to my liking. . . . after your resume of a morning at your house, I felt "caught up" with each of you and as though I lived just around the corner from you instead of away off here in the city. . . . I think it's wonderful that Jack can work on a real farm this summer. . . . it will make him so healthy and fit for whatever the winter may bring . . . don't tell him this but I didn't know mules were used on farms in this part of the country! . . . I'm not sure that I've even seen a mule! . . . I've ridden on "mulas" in Mexico and burros out west . . . are they the same? . . . if they are, I hope Jack has more success with the creatures than I did.

Speaking of Rob's garden, have I told you about Dave's? . . . every family in our block has a plot of ground about a block and a half south of us in the big empty space that runs from the Ridge to the railroad tracks . . . each plot is neatly marked off and someone donated a beautifully printed wooden sign with the family name on it. . . . they are much larger gardens than the ones you see in corner lots when driving about the city . . . Dave has planted his piece entirely in corn . . . everyone else seems to have a great variety of things . . I've only been over there a few times because as always, I'm too busy with babies, but every free night Dave takes Davy and Louis to our "Victowy Garden" as Louis calls it . . . the boys look forward all day to this evening pilgrimage but how Dave stands it, I don't know! . . . from what I hear, Dave goes completely wild when he gets into the comparative freedom of the "great open spaces" . . . Dave is always having to stop and bring him home for either a bandage or mercutacrome . . . Louis sits quietly watching and methodically scratching mosquito bites until he gets to the point where he can't scratch fast enough to keep up with the pests and then he cries and wants to go home! . . . from the number of stalks I've seen, we ought to be able to send you corn this year! . . . wouldn't that be ironic? . . . but even if we have none, Dave will have enjoyed his gardening because of the sociability of it . . . . he likes people you know, and loves to compare notes with his neighbors . . . I'm sure you'd be amazed if you could walk through our city streets, to see the number of Victory Gardens there are . . . practically every piece of vacant property is covered with them . . . Dave says that even if none of the vegetables can be eaten, the psychological benefits to the civilians will be worth while . . he thinks there is no better antidote for war nerves than planting . . . when I pass some pathetic little garden, maybe only "five by five" feet and see the struggles of the tiny plants to live and find the sun, I'm, curiously enough, tremendously proud! . . . I think to myself . . . here's some other city bred soul who like me, doesn't know the difference between a trowel and a spade but he's trying to do his part . . . and like Katherine Brush, I say to myself, "I LOVE AMERICANS."

But you say you have some dear little ducklings who waddle after a CLUCKING HEN . . for Heavens sake, what's a clucking hen? . . . . don't they all cluck? . . .and what's she doing with ducklings? . . . . where's old mamma duck? . . . . our laying bridge?

I don't wonder that Gentleman Bob finds his job to his liking! riding to work in a station wagon, swimming in the club pool and golfing on his off hours, who could ask for more than that? . . . how my husband would enjoy that job! . . . he has yet to have a golf game this summer and you know that I've often wondered if he "could love me half so well; loved he not golf, more?"

You're very right . . . there is nothing I'd enjoy more than meeting Mr. J. Jeffery Grant . . . I hope some day that I may, because I've admired his work for many years . . . in fact, I had planned that when I had finished my work with Frederic Grant (don't ever put a "k" on the end of my Mr. Grant's Frederic, again, old bean . . . he definitely, doesn't like it!) that I would try to find me a teacher of landscape painting . . . Mr. J. Jeffery Grant would be ideal . . . you might ask him, when you see him again, if he'd consider taking me as a pupil sometime when I'm in my late sixties. I figure that by then I will probably have succeeded in marrying off J. D. and have some time for painting again.

Your telling me about your visit to Ravinia brought up old memories of the place that ran through my mind for several days . . . I suppose that's why when I was in our Public Library the other day, I noticed a book called the complete opera book by Gustave Kobbe . . . I glanced through it idly but soon became so interested that I brought it home . . . it's a complete history of the opera . . . told in such a simple and, yes, loving way that even such as I can understand it . . . it is profusely illustrated with photographs of the operatic stars who have sung the leading roles . . Kobbe tells the story of the libretto so clearly that some of them which have never quite made sense for me have finally become intelligible . . . so I'm having my opera vicariously on my own front porch this summer.

Dave and I are reading together Spykman's America's Strategy. In World Politics . . . that means that Dave does the reading aloud and I do the interrupting . . . it's the type of book we both love because it evokes so much discussion . . . the author, Professor Nicholas J. Spykman was the first director of the Yale Institute of International Studies so we feel fairly confident that he ought to know something about what he is writing. I can only hope that if the neighbors hear us when we get very excited that they will realize that we're "having more fun than anybody" (as Davy puts it) and not believe we're about to dissolve our marriage!

Thank you for your recipe for ice cream. I tried it last Sunday and liked it better than any I had ever used before. I hadn't made any for a long time because all my recipes called for whipped cream and we can't buy whipping cream in the city anymore.

I must close now and write to my two Navy boys . . . cousins Bob and Bert . . . do you have anybody in the service that you write to? and if so, what on earth do you write to young, unattached gentlemen? . . . Bert told me when he was home on furlough recently that letters mean everything to most of the boys but it's very difficult for me to think of things to tell them that will interest them . . . poor Bert who is nineteen, must get fed up with the cute doings and smart sayings of my children . . . just by way of diversion, shall I offer to swap recipes like you and I? . . .

With love from us all,
As always,
Eleanore.

Ask public to forego turkeys at present time

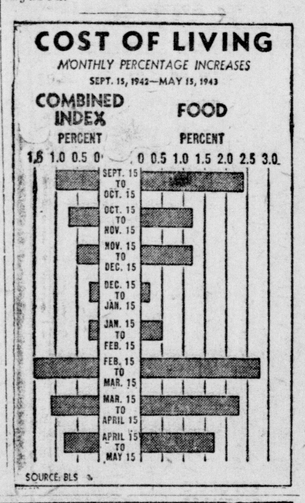

American fighting men all over the world are going to have turkey—for Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day. They may be a long way from home but Uncle Sam is determined to make certain that every fighting man asea or on shore—the vanguard of the march on Berlin—or—Tekio—, or sailing the seven seas, will have a taste of home on the days he has been accustomed to celebrate with good eating with the folks "back in the States."

The War Food Administration today called upon the American turkey industry to provide approximately 10 million pounds of turkey meat in August and September for shipment to American armed forces overseas. The turkey will supply the main course of Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's day dinners on every battlefront where soldiers, sailors, marines, coast guardsmen and airmen are fighting.

The request, WFA officials said, also carries an appeal to processors packers, hotel and restaurant operators, and consumers to forego selling, serving, or eating turkey for a few weeks during the early season until this urgent requirement for American military forces is met.

SUES FOR DAMAGES

Nonna J. Robbins has sued Theodore G. Schaefer Jr., for $10,000 damages in Circuit court for injuries she says she sustained in an automobile accident Aug. 16, 1941. She says she was his guest in an automobile, which he drove so carelessly that it collided with another car on U. S. 41 at Glenview rd., and she was seriously injured.

MAKE WAY FOR (MISS) CASEY JONES

Santa Fe Railway Photos

Railroadin' has always been a man's game but since the war some of the toughest jobs have been taken over by women. An open letter to Willkie

by CALVIN MITCHELL

As I read "One World", its pictures of world affairs are very instructive and seem to favor a just, humanitarian and progressive government of the people, by the people and for the people and suggests that, if we govern according to our ideals, the United States will become a model for all nations.

Now, as long as crafty politicians are given absolute power to do as they please with our laws, lives and property, human greed will prevent idealism, as the dubious acts of legislators have proven from the first congress down to the present.

It was this greed that fastened the Rothschild robber money system on the American people in 1791; fostered the hateful slave trade; demonetized silver when a silver dollar was worth $1.03; hamstrung the greenbacks so that the bankers bought them, at 40 per cent and then secured the "public" credit strengthening act to have them redeemed at 100 per cent; and great steals of the public domain and natural resources and grafting galore. This stench of steals in the U. S. government, state and cities still in the nostrils, when lo and behold, more steals hove in sight.

Do you think that this greed can be controlled without amending the constitution to take this absolute power away from the politicians and require all laws to be submitted to a vote of the people for ratification? Then it might be difficult for the nabobs to bribe fifty million honest voters.

Your dialogue with a young educated Russian who under the "Tsars" could never have been educated and hold a position of trust said, "Russia does not pay interest on government bonds," seems to be a misquotation. He, more likely, said: Russia uses the people's money as revolving funds through government owned banks to pay all expenses as we go, so Russia does not issue government bonds as the U. S. A. and England do, and therefore does not pay interest for the right to use the people's money and put a large debt on future generations just to enrich a few thousand bankers and million of cahooting officials and speculators."

Now, Mr. Willkie, if the bankers can use the people's money deposited in their banks, as revolving funds to pay billions for bonds and loans to business that in a short time create trillions of "credit money" solely for the benefit of the bankers and cahooters without borrowing, or using a cent of their own money, why can't Uncle Sam do the same with the same money through U. S. owned banks without borrowing or peddling bonds There are four nations that do this and after the war is over their peoples will not be loaded down and enslaved by debt.

Our constitution saved us as a nation and protects the rights of the people in many ways — the greatest of these is the power to change the constitution as changing conditions may require to protect the poor and weak from the enroachments of the strong, cunning, rich and criminal. If we amend the constitution to provide for the "initiative commission referendum" to take the place of congress and legislators we will then have a democratic government.

There is much more to say but this must be brief and so, I enclose "Old Scout" articles, made a part of this letter. Propositions that should be answered by politicians, editors, columnists and commentators to let people know the truth, are marked with quotations marks.

The people are anxiouslyy looking for a Moses to lead them out of the ladyrinth of partisan bickering and brawls by which they secure the spoils of office and "grab."

Now, Mr. Willkie, is the time for you as an luriate man without guile to come out for the great money reform as outlined by "Old Scout," and as candidate of the Republican party with the money plank as the main issue in 1944, the republican party will be swept into power again, and your name will resound down the avenues of time, as a great benefactor of mankind, but; if defeated, you will join the immortals who sacrificed their lives and opportunities for the welfare of the "down trodden". You know it is grander to be "right" than president, or to be the king of the Nabobs.

Spends 15 months building bridges for Alaska highway

Ray Eichholz of Mt. Prospect home on furlough

Fifteen months of road building in zero and sub-zero weather of Alaska, that is the story related this week by Corporal Technician Raymond Eichholz of Mt. Prospect. Raymond is home on furlough after helping to complete the Alaska (Alcan) highway.

Raymond joined Uncle Sam in November of '41, first reporting to Camp Grant. He was transferred to Ft. Leonard Wood, Missouri, thence to Ft. Lewis, Washington.

As a member of the 73rd army engineers he was assigned to duty at Whitehorse, Canada, about forty miles from the Alaskan border. Using Whitehorse as his home base, he spent fifteen months crossing and recrossing many times the route to Fairbanks, Alaska, while working on the new highway.

Raymond's own words best tell the story of life in the north: "The Alaskan highway has been completed to Fairbanks, Alaska, extending almost 2,000 miles from its starting point, Dawson Creek, Canada. Our camp at Whitehorse was just halfway between the terminals of the road, and about forty miles from the border of Alaska.

"Our unit consisted of one company of men, though we were divided into three platoons for working crews. Our motor equipment included a fifteen ton Diamond-T truck, and pulling twenty tons of equipment behind. Thus, I was driving thirty-five tons, a weight I often wished I didn't have on some of those icy turns.

"Purpose of our unit was not to do the actual road building but to supply the pontoon bridges necessary every few miles to allow the transportation of men, supplies, and equipment, for the road building. Most of the time I was hauling rations, men and equipment, though when actual "muscle work" came I did any and everything to help get our job done in a hurry.

An Old Trail

"The Alaska highway follows an old narrow trail. When we first moved in, nothing was there except the trail. There was never room for more than one vehicle, in order to meet a second truck one of the drivers would have to drive off the road. He then would have the other driver help him back onto the road, either through pushing or pulling.

"We would usually receive an assignment at the beginning of the day to erect a pontoon bridge at such and such a place. Perhaps three hours later a call would come to move elsewhere, and we would have to pick up the bridge and reassemble it at the new location. Most of our driving, of course, was in advance of the road crews, making all of our driving especially hazardous.

"Many's the time I would drive up one hill, only to skid right down backwards again. It was then that I wished I was home again. In such cases we would use power winches to get the vehicles over the hills. Sometimes we would have to use this method of climbing mountains three or four times in one day, making travel very slow.

"Temperatures in winter ranged from 50 to 70 below zero, though the weather is so dry you don't notice the cold as much as you would think. Besides, everyone wears 'Parkers', the head covering suits specially designed to combat cold. They cover you from head to foot and are quite warm.

Much Swampland

"Because of the swampland in between the mountains through most of Alaska, the entire road is covered with gravel, rather than concrete. Engineers believe that it will take five years for the gravel to sink enough to allow concrete pavement. The swampland is called muskieg (I don't know how you spell it but you pronounce it "muskaig") and acts much like quicksand. When you step in it, you immediately sink in up to your knees, though rarely any further.

"In spite of the precarious work involved of driving along the edges of glaciers and mountains, no one in our company was killed. Other units had casualties of that nature but we were just lucky (and careful). We had the usual accidents of cuts and a few broken bones, but no serious injuries in our entire stay.

"There is a railroad up in Alaska, but it is an awfully slow method of transportation. One stretch of 122 miles took almost twenty-four hours to travel because of the climb necessary. One stretch of ten miles included a climb of 2300 feet. While the railroad goes over many smaller mountains, the highway has been built around and in the valleys. This saves the climbing, but makes the road longer.

"Many of our meals consisted of moose and caribou meat shot by the men themselves. Our cooks would do honor to any city restaurant in the way they cooked that meat. It was delicious. We also saw numerous silver fox. Shooting spoils their hides, however, and we had neither the time nor the duty fee to trap any of the animals. The latter is $100 per pelt.

"Alaska is a great country but we were all glad to get back to the States. Our unit was returned to Ft. Lewis, Washington, and the entire company granted a 20 day furlough. Ninety of us were riding the train to Chicago and given a special car that we rode all the way. No transfers were necessary. There were no sleepers available but we didn't care to sleep anyway. It was too much fun getting back home."

Ray is scheduled to leave for Fort Lewis August 4. His address at Ft. Lewis is 73rd Engineers. His company will probably be sent to some new assignment soon.

No. Carolina

Resident of Palatine, Charles T. Folkerts, received his commission as 2nd Lieutenant in the Coast Artillery Corps upon successfully completing the officer candidate course at the Antiaircraft Artillery School, Camp Davis, N. C., on July 15, 1943.

The newly commissioned local officer will take up his new duties in the Antiaircraft Artillery after a short furlough. The course at the Antiaircraft School is one of the most difficult of the officer candidate tests in the army.

Not only do candidates have to meet the high standards of leadership necessary to all officers, but they must be able to master and put into practice the complicated technical art of Antiaircraft Artillery. Their studies and practical work involve mainly the means and actions by which swift enemy aircraft can be shot down or kept from successfully performing bombing missions. In addition, A. A. officers must be able to put their guns to use in other artillery purposes, such as anti-tank.

From Fort Bragg, North Carolina this week comes a letter from Cpl. Leonard J. Hartman of Palatine. He writes: "Thank you for sending me the Enterprise for I always like to read the letters the boys write in from camp.

"I am no longer at Camp Butner. My new address is: Headquarters 13th Air Borne Division, 190 Glider Infantry, Fort Bragg.

"Am looking forward to my first glider ride. This is something rather new and I sure was lucky to get to come here. This July 27 it will be exactly one year in the army for me."

Word has been received that Howard Krambier of Palatine has recently been promoted from Technician 4th Grade to S-Sgt.

He is with the para-troopers and at the time he volunteered for parachute duty, there were very few qualified jumpers.

His new address is: Service Company, 508th Parachute Infantry, Camp Machail, North Carolina.

Miss Agnes Weir of Mt. Prospect left Tuesday for New River, North Carolina, the regular marine base. She is the first Mt. Prospect girl to join any of the armed services and she picked the marines.

Ohio

Cleveland.—Second Lt. Thomas J. Freeman, Jr., of Bensenvilie, a recent graduate of Officers' Candidate School at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Aberdeen, Maryland, has just been assigned to special duty with the War Department's Cleveland Ordnance District.

Lt. Freeman is a graduate of the University of Illinois, where he majored in Business Administration and Accounting.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Freeman, who reside in Bensenville.

Wacs

WAC Evelyn A. Cavanaugh of Arlington Heights has recently been promoted. She is now one step up the ladder and is an Auxiliary First Class.

Evelyn is stationed at Fort Myer, Virginia, and her address is A-607326. WAC Detachment, A. D. S. G., South Post.

Muskrats' Medications

A Louisiana biologist says that muskrats keep any wound clean by constant licking, and if the flesh becomes infected they do not hesitate to gnaw it away.

KID SALVAGE

Colorado

Cpl. Willard Soenksen of Mt. Prospect has just completed six months in the armed forces and is now stationed at Lowry Field, Denver, Colorado. He is a member of the Armored Division of the air forces and an instructor of the now famous Sperry Turret and machine guns on the Flying Fortress and Liberator bombers. Willard says that after seeing the planes and what they can do, he doesn't see how the Japs and Nazis can last very much longer.

When he entered the army in January of this year, he was sent to Keesler Field in Biloxi, Mississippi, for basic training. From there he went to Buckley Field, Denver, and after four weeks was transferred across town to Lowry Field to complete his training. Willard graduated the first week in June and was made an instructor. He was also made a corporal in June.

His wife is with him in Denver where they have a small apartment.

Willard's address is:
37th Academic Squad.
Lowry Field, Col.

Pfc. Gail M. Petersen of Arlington Heights, graduated June 20 from armament school at Lowry Field, Colorado.

He has been in the army since February, took his basic training at Camp Grant, and has also been stationed at Keesler Field, Mississippi, and Buckley Field, Colorado.

Gail was a graduate of Arlington Heights high school and before entering the army was employed by Commonwealth Edison Co. in Chicago. He is married and has a ten months old son. Both Mrs. Petersen and the baby are at present in Elburn, Illinois.

Sgt. Glen Granzin who has been in the army since 1941, has just graduated from armament school of the air forces technical training command at Lowry Field, Colorado.

A graduate of Arlington high, Glenn worked for Montgomery Ward before entering the army. While in school he was quite an athlete, playing football, baseball, and being a track man as well.

Besides Lowry Field, he has been stationed at Buckley Field, Cal-Aero Field in Santa Ana, Cal., Kelly Field, Texas and Camp Forrest, Tennessee.

Virginia

Among the recent graduates of the Advanced Training Course of the Marine Corps Officers School, Quantico, Virginia, was Second Lieutenant James Bullock Jackson, whose home is R.F.D. No. 1, Mt. Prospect. Lieutenant Jackson's wife, the former Alice M. Wroble, is presently residing at 3224 N. Kenneth Ave., Chicago.

Prior to attending this school Lt. Jackson underwent rigid basic training, after which he attended Officer Candidates School at Quantico. While he received his commission at the end of the candidate school period, the new work which he has just completed is in the nature of advanced, specialized training.

Bombs Japs in So. Pacific

S-Sgt. Marvin F. Homeyer (center) of Arlington Heights is shown here tuning up one of the engines on an Army bomber in preparation for a mission to bomb Jap installations somewhere in the South Pacific. Sgt. Homeyer was awarded the Oak Leaf luster in lieu of the Air Medal for his participation in this particular mission. A member of the Army Air Forces, he is stationed in the Hawaiian area.

PLANE TALK

Armed forces operating on foreign soil can't get very far, and can't last long, without having a steady stream of supplies.

This basic fact of warfare was strikingly illustrated by the Allied invasion of Italy starting July 10. Exactly one week earlier the British Admiralty and Air Ministry issued a joint statement in London that carrier-borne and land-based planes were providing a "complete shore-to-shore air cover" spanning the Atlantic as protection for convoys against Nazi submarines.

In one instance the Air Ministry announced that a Liberator which caught a sub on the surface, lying in wait for an Allied convoy, had dropped a depth charge from an altitude of only eight feet.

Convoy protection has been stepped up by what Prime Minister Churchill calls "V.L.R." operations — meaning Liberator bombers equipped with extra large fuel tanks to carry their depth charges over a "very long range." These ships are part of the Coastal Command.

That this Atlantic "umbrella" of planes is doing the job is attested by the fact that 10,000,000 tons of shipping were sent to mediterranean in May, only 2.2 per cent was lost. Losses declined still further in June and July, and by August were approaching the vanishing point.

Department of Mercy

Following reports of signally successful operation of the system for transport by air of wounded and ill military personnel, the Army Air Forces School of Air Evacuation at Bowman Field, Kentucky, has been established as a permanent installation, the War Department has announced.

This paves the way for expansion of the program for training nurses, enlisted men and flight surgeons for air evacuation duty.

Approximately 50,000 officers and enlisted men who were disabled by wounds or illness have been transported in air ambulances. This includes air transport within the United States, as well as to base hospitals and to the United States from combat zones.

The first class of air evacuation nurses was graduated from the school at Bowman Field last February and three additional classes have since completed the course.

Paging Mr. Goering

In 68 daylight precision bombing missions against Germany and German-held territory in occupied Europe, 102 industrial targets, naval bases and war plants were destroyed or damaged by 11,423 tons of bombs of the United States Army Eighth Air Force during the first year of American operations from bases in England. Besides the tremendous destruction of produc- of the German war machine — Number 1 job of the heavy bombers — Liberators and Fortresses shot down 1,199 enemy planes on the 68 missions; probably destroyed 525 more; and damaged 501.

Scooting artists

In one part of the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft organization are workers who get paid for literally "lying down on the job." These are the trained artists and draftsmen in the Lofting departments, who lie on their stomachs and propel themselves on tiny scooters, while sketching designs on huge pieces of metal laid on the floor.

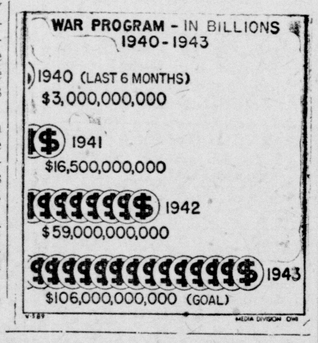

All-woman cap

The first all-woman Civil Air Patrol squadron in Pennsylvania has been formed in the southwestern part of the state. About 50 members make up the present complement.

He isn't fooling

Flight Inspector Joe Dunkel of Consolidated Vultee is a fellow to be reckoned with. Perhaps you don't remember, but Joe was a world's champion parachute jumper before he went into war work. He has jumped, and safely of course, 1,128 times. His highest leap was 34,000 feet. Now, after 32 years of leaping into space Joe is determined to do it once again.

Joe says. "I am just waiting for us to build a plane that will climb to 50,000 feet because then I am going to bail out, if only to confound the scientists who have told me it can't be done — safely."

Wheeling soldier writes of war prisoners in Africa

Africa

Writing this week from Africa is Sgt. Howard J. Freeman of Palatine. He says in his letter: "The only thing wrong with this place is the sand flies and the heat. The food is good, and we sure eat plenty. On the boat, though, we only got two meals a day and the food was terrible, but I did not get seasick. It was only rough for a couple of days.

"The people here are doing their threshing and you should see it! They have a team of water oxen and a contraption on the order of a disc. I don't know how many bushels they can thrash, but if they get fifty I guess they would be doing well.

"Today is the fourth of July and did we have the dinner! Turkey, white and sweet potatoes, carrots, bread, lemonade, and a can of beer.

"My address is:
Sgt. Howard J. Freeman
36311686
APO 0616
c/o PM, NYC, N.Y."

Dated June 17 and supposedly from North Africa this week is a letter received from Wallace Broeske of Arlington Heights.

"I get the Herald every week and every issue seems to tell of more men leaving the old town. I bet the town is plenty dead by now.

"I have hopes of meeting John Allen (Arl. Hts.) over here. I was in the same port as he is recently but didn't know he was there at the time."

John Allen is living with a French family in Africa and it is presumed that the country is French Morocco. Also, John is associating with some Englishmen, some of whom are believed to be acquainted with John's cousins in England.

Bank nets $35

Traveling bank at Arlington Heights last week netted Austin Buncik $35. He is stationed some where in South America and is serving the coast guard as a seaman, first class.

This week Pvt. William Milligan is the driver of the traveling paycar. His address is "B-55th Inf. Tng. Bn., Camp Wolters, Tex."

The Nick Loibl family of Wheeling recently received the following letter from their son, Corp. Matthew Loibl, written on June 4, "somewhere in Africa."

"The fighting in North Africa is already two weeks in the past, but life here hasn't changed much for us. The sun's still hot. The days are still long, and the bugs still bite just as hard.

"But there's one sure sign that things have changed. It's the style now to sport a Jerry helmet on the radiator of your truck or jeep. These helmets are squarish, box-like affairs that make our round tin pots look like streamlined bonnets. It's a sight to see a mud splattered G. I. truck roll down the road, a cloud of African dust trailing and the helmet, a Nazi scalp, leading the way.

"Most of our trucks (the army calls them vehicles) have acquired names. British drivers go for sentimental names reminding them of girls back home—like "Madge," "Elinor," and "Sarah Jane." Most G. I. drivers prefer monickers like "Buck Rogers," "Hitler's Hearse," or "Balol."

"Those newspaper stories about all the prisoners we took in Tunisia didn't lie. You should have seen that long column of German and Italian trucks, miles and miles of them puffiing their way around those sharp African curves on the way to prison camps. Yes, it's true that many of the prisoners drove themselves to the big stockade. And it's true that lots of them did not seem too unhappy about the deal. Many, especially Italians, were smiling and singing.

"At last the fellows are getting a look at some of this German equipment, and the Nazis left a big pile of it behind. Of all the guys, I guess, the fellows in the radio section are most pleased, because no matter what else you say about him, Jerry certainly knows how to build a radio.

"Now that the shooting is over for a while in North Africa, Uncle Sam has lifted a few censorship restrictions. At last I can tell you where we landed and where we've been—but not where we are now. We landed on the Atlantic coast of French Morocco and those first letters were written from cities there. Later we crossed Morocco and entered Algeria.

"I got into Oran once and rode a street car—and had a swim in the Mediterranean. Then when things were getting really hot in Tunisia, we moved in the back door, and the first Germans we saw were either dead or prisoners. That's about as much as I can say.

"We've read and heard a lot about the Germans and there isn't a dogface in Africa who doesn't respect them as mighty tough customers. But you'll be glad to hear that the legend of his super superiority has been punctured, and the boys are plenty proud of the equipment you are sending them from the states.

"With the Nazis out of Africa and the war one step nearer completion, I dream more often of the day I'll be running up the walk to No. 000 Home Street. Every move seems to take us farther from home. But as the fellows say, 'the further we get from home the sooner this war'll be won.' So the further we go, the sooner we'll get back there."

Hawaii

Paddock Publications is in receipt of a letter this week from Pvt. Anthony Bodor of Arlington Heights. Pvt. Bodor is stationed in the Hawaiian Islands and writes as follows: "I sure want to thank you for sending me your weekly paper; you don't know how much the home town boys love to read it.

"I love my job here with a tank outfit, and you certainly can't beat the Tankers — that's the truth."

Ed. M. Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Stone, 6339 South Laflin street, Chicago, and brother of Mrs. Mary E. Csanadi, 230 So. Vail street, Arlington Heights, has been promoted to the highest grade possible to a non-commissioned officer in the army. He recently was named master sergeant in the Seventh Army Air Force in the Hawaiian area where he has served since 1938.

Before Sergeant Stone joined the army in the Hawaiian islands while he was on his way around the world he had attended R. Lindblom Tech from which he graduated in 1929, the University of Illinois, Crane Junior College and Central YMCA Chicago College.

Sergeant Stone has served his entire army career in the photographic laboratory of an army air base. He began there four and one-half years ago as an apprentic and now is the non-commissioned officer in charge after having held every non-commissioned grade in the army.

A Letter From Bud

Ma and me got a letter this mornin'
From Bud that's our own soldier lad,
He says that the boys in his outfit
Are all-downright rip-roarin' mad.

For they got a tough letter from Hitler
In answer to one that they wrote,
Bud says they are fightin' a Crackpot,
Who's as dumb as an Old Billy Goat.

Hitler wrote — "You are not comin' over
And your threats I just have to ignore,
For you don't have the planes to do flyin'
And my subs have surrounded your shore.

"Now you think that your people are smarter
Because they have got all that wealth,
But fast livin' has made you all puny
While us Germans has kept our good health.

"While your ladies are givin' tea parties,
Our women are raisin' more sons
And the boys in your shops keep a kickin'
While our men are a makin' more guns.

"Them men that you're callin' your leaders
To me are a fine set of fools,
But let them keep on with their foolin'
For I — Hitler, will soon make your rules.

"I already own Seventeen Nations,
Who were stupid and fell for my lures
And I — Hitler — will never be happy
Till I've taken that Nation of yours.

"Some evenin' along about Sundown
I will start on your City New York,
Then just watch your money-mad scramble
When my big guns on them I uncork.

"My fifth column, who lives all about you,
Will rise at the sound of my guns
And they'll slash your smart Nation to pieces
Then you'll feel the Iron heel of my huns.

"Then I'll close all your schools and your churches
And I'll not hear the weak when they call,
For strong Germans shall rule every Nation
And I — Hitler — be Master of all."

Bud says that he knows Hitler's crazy
To think that our Nation he'll rule,
But it's time we should all pull together
And not play the part of the fool.

Bud says the Fool might be a neighbor,
So be careful to him what you say
And Uncle Sam will take care of Old Hitler
In Our good Old American Way.

— Henry H. DeTray.
